Part 1

Questions 1 – 10

Read the text below, and for each number, circle the correct word on the next page.

The Science of Taste

There's more to enjoying food ...(0)... simply eating it. We ...(1)... think that eating food is all that's ...(2)... in discovering its taste. However, research tells us that other things also have a big ...(3)... on whether or not we enjoy a meal.

This is the reason why good chefs pay so much ...(4)... to the appearance of dishes, cafés use the smell of coffee to ...(5)... in customers, and owners spend money on restaurant design.

When we see and smell food, information is sent to our brains about the flavours to ...(6)..., and the taste we experience comes ...(7)... from this. Experiments were ...(8)... out using bowls of peas, one with green food colour added, and one without. People ate from each bowl, and ...(9)... the flavour of the peas in both bowls being the same, the greener peas were described as tasting fresher by every ...(10)... person.

Part 5

Questions 36 – 40

The people below are all trying to choose a shopping centre to go to. On the opposite page there are descriptions of eight shopping centres. Decide which shopping centre would be the most suitable for the following people. For questions 36 – 40, write the correct letter (A – H) in the box.

36

[1]

Carla wants a shopping centre where she can find a necklace for her mother's birthday, and have something to eat. She's taking her five-year-old sister and would like to be able to entertain her.

37

[1]

Jonas needs a new tennis racquet. His brother can drive him, so they'll need somewhere to leave the car. The boys want to go to a place with things to do apart from shopping.

38

[1]

Sofia, who's on holiday with her mum, would like to take pictures of the city and buy a poster of the castle to remind her of their trip. She wants to go by public transport.

39

[1]

Leon would like to go shopping with his elderly grandmother, who has difficulty walking up steps. They'll go by taxi and want a small shopping centre with luxury shops.

40

[1]

Suyin would like to go to a shopping centre in the middle of town. She'd like to go to a place which doesn't get too full or busy and has unusual shops.

Shopping Centres in and around Castleford

A King's Square

King's Square is one of the smaller shopping centres in Castleford, so there isn't anything to do except shop. If you're into sport, this is the place for you, as there are two great sports shops. There's a small car park behind the shopping centre.

C The Terrace

The Terrace is where the rich and famous go shopping for luxuries. It's a huge place, with three floors, but there are plenty of lifts. As well as the shops, there's a gym and a cinema. It's a long way from the city, but is easy to get to by public transport.

E Northgate

This is a small shopping centre in the heart of the old city. Because there are no large department stores, there are fewer people, which makes the shopping experience very pleasant. There are no sports shops, but you'll find plenty of stores which you won't see in other, larger centres.

G The Bay

This is a huge shopping centre, so the range of shops is great – everything from sports shops to bookshops, and there's plenty of parking. With regular art and photography exhibitions as well as restaurants, there's lots for shoppers to enjoy when they've bought what they need, although there's nothing to interest very young children.

B Eastlake Centre

This shopping centre is famous for its fashion shops – a great place for clothes and jewellery at a range of prices. It's a little way out of the centre, with beautiful views of the town and great cafés and restaurants. If anyone gets bored, there's a cinema and a playground.

D Park Mall

The location of Park Mall, close to the historic town centre, means there are great views from the top floors, and it's easy to get to by bus. It can get very crowded, but there's a good range of shops, selling everything from souvenirs to more unusual items.

F Metroland

Metroland is a small, rather beautiful shopping centre, famous for its jewellery shops, right in the middle of town. There are two floors of shops, and no lifts, so you have to be good with stairs, but it's worth going to the top to see the views over the city. There's a small car park.

H Garden Square

This isn't a very large shopping centre, but that doesn't mean that choice is limited. The shops are full of beautiful, high-quality products. From the glass lift you can get great views over the city on a clear day. Unfortunately, it's not on a bus route or near a train station.

Part 6

Questions 41 – 45

Read the text and questions below.

For each question, circle the correct letter A, B, C or D.

Searching for music

My name's Daniel and I'm a DJ. I'm always looking for different types of music, and one of the styles I particularly enjoy playing is over thirty years old now. It comes from Africa, and it's called 'Afrobeat'.

For a DJ, it's great music – lively with a heavy beat that's ideal for getting people onto the dance floor. However, when I first got into it, getting hold of Afrobeat wasn't easy. It was mostly recorded on plastic vinyl records, and since then, the technology for recording and playing music has changed completely. As a result, most old Afrobeat albums have been thrown out or forgotten about, packed away in garages and spare rooms.

Searching the internet was little help; it was as if Afrobeat had disappeared. I tried placing ads in newspapers instead and eventually located some vinyl records belonging to an African musician. He let me have them, and I persuaded a record company to produce a few of the tracks digitally, having first made sure the artists who had written and performed the music would get a share of the profits. As far as I'm concerned, it's bringing an old style back to life that's important, rather than making money for myself.

I search for unusual songs as part of my work as a DJ and because it's fun. But the real pleasure comes from seeing people dance to a type of music they've never even heard of before, from every part of the world. And, of course, some of that music is on old vinyl records. So, if your parents or grandparents have any at home that you think are just old rubbish, have a listen to them and maybe you'll change your mind!

- 41 What is Daniel's main purpose in writing the article?
- A to describe what it is like to be a DJ
 - B to explain his interest in a certain type of music
 - C to recommend that people sell their old records
 - D to encourage people to help him find music he can use
- 42 Daniel says that the African music which he was attracted to
- A changed in style due to technology.
 - B was mainly played to live audiences.
 - C had a sound that made it suitable for dancing.
 - D was recorded in some unusual places.

[1]

[1]

43 What does Daniel say about the Afrobeat records which he found?

- A He managed to get them by using the internet.
- B He helped the original musicians make money from them.
- C He was worried about how to get them recorded again.
- D He had to persuade the owner to sell them to him.

[1]

44 What does Daniel enjoy most about his work as a DJ?

- A sharing the music he finds
- B choosing the music to play
- C travelling all over the world
- D discovering songs he doesn't know

[1]

45 Which of these advertisements best describes the events that Daniel DJs?

A

'Don't miss your chance to dance to modern music, but played the old-fashioned way – on vinyl!'

B

'I run music events specially for the older generation. My collection includes a huge range of musical styles.'

C

'At my shows you'll hear music you never even knew existed, from lots of different countries.'

D

'Come and listen to your favourite songs, and others you had forgotten, sung by exciting new artists.'
